QS World Grad School Tours in the US and Canada

(Architecture and Planning, Music, Dance Studies, Fine Arts)

16 September 2010 to 30 September 2010

If you're based around New York City or Washington DC and are thinking about future study in the creative disciplines, we'd like to invite you to come and meet us at the QS World Grad School Tour in September.

The National Institute of Creative Arts and Industries (NICAI) offers programmes and research opportunities in a range of creative disciplines including Architecture, Planning, Urban Design, Sustainable Design, Dance, Fine Arts, Music and Sonic Arts. NICAI's exciting mix of disciplines reflects our reputation as a leading centre of creative, artistic and professional excellence. You will study alongside other creative people, sharing ideas and collaborating on projects within a stimulating interdisciplinary framework.

Michael Milojevic, Senior Lecturer at the School of Architecture and Planning at NICAI, will be in New York City and Washington DC in September with representatives from the International Office and the Faculty of Arts. Michael tutors in the architectural design studios and lectures in the history, theory and criticism of architecture, as well as conducting seminars on special topics in the history of architecture. He has led seven architectural study tours for the University to Italy, Iberia, the Balkans and Central Europe as well a number co-taught with European architecture schools.
